Hubzu Launches New Mobile App

Real estate marketing and auction platform provides best-in-class technology to benefit both buyers and sellers

LUXEMBOURG, October 27, 2020 – Hubzu, a leading online real estate marketing platform, today announced it launched a new best-in-class mobile app that will give residential real estate buyers on-the-go access to the power and functionality of the Hubzu platform. With this new app, Hubzu now provides even more tools for buyers to find, research and bid on homes in a competitive auction format for all types of residential real estate, including retail, short sales, foreclosures and REO.

The Hubzu® online platform is an end-to-end asset management and disposition solution for residential foreclosure, short sale, REO, deed in lieu, CWCOT and retail property auctions. Hubzu simplifies the purchase and sales process for buyers, sellers and brokers of foreclosure and other properties with transparent bidding and streamlined transaction support. Supported by a strong focus on customer feedback, data and analytics, Hubzu has facilitated the sale of over 225,000 homes nationwide with over 4.5 million bids placed since 2009.

Available for IOS and Android, the new easy-to-use mobile app is designed to help make real estate investing through Hubzu even simpler. Experienced and new buyers can grow their portfolios anytime and anywhere right from their phones. They can discover unique properties, bid on online auctions and stay updated with real-time alerts. Property listings include key details, photos, auction dates, bid prices, estimated rental rates and more.

By the end of the year, the mobile app will also include proxy bidding capabilities to make it easier for buyers to acquire homes at foreclosure sales from anywhere in the world. It will also pair directly with the new Hubzu foreclosure app available in October that will provide fully integrated search, research and bidding capabilities for live on-site foreclosure sales.

“Our app is a must-have for real estate investors,” said Michael Jansta, General Manager of Hubzu. “It’s the ultimate mobile tool for helping buyers increase their portfolios by leveraging data and technology to discover, research and acquire properties. It’s reflective of our commitment to invest in technology and continuously improve the Hubzu marketplace.”
